In submitting its bid, the bidder certifies that it is utilizing either the "brand name or equivalent," when required by the bid specifications. When proposing an equivalent good or service to a brand name, the listed brand name serves as a reference or point of comparison for the functional or operational characteristic desired for the good or service being requested as an equivalent. Where a bidder submits an equivalent, it shall be the responsibility of the bidder to document the equivalence claim.

In the event that a contract is awarded to the bidder, as the lowest responsible bidder in accordance with the Local Public Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 40A:11-1 et seq., and it is determined by the Owner's Engineer that any equivalent good or service proposed in the bid or by the contractor is not equivalent to the functionality or operational characteristic of the brand name, the bidder agrees that in its role as the contractor, it shall either provide the good or service that is equivalent to the functional or operational characteristic of the brand name or bear all the costs associated with proceeding forward with the use of the proposed good or service as a substitution.
